1890 Research: An Indispensable Investment

2017 ARD Research Symposium

April 1-4, 2017

1890 Research: Meeting 21st Century Challenges Through Innovation

The goal of the ARD Research Symposium is to provide a forum for interactions, share knowledge, expand partnerships through networking, as well as to showcase the talents and achievements of the 1890 community. The 2017 ARD Biennial Research Symposium will be held April 1-4, 2017 at the Hyatt Regency in Atlanta, Ga.

The ARD Research Symposium has become the foremost network for integrating scholarly experiences between researchers and undergraduate/graduate students in the food and agricultural sciences at the 1890 land-grant universities. The ARD symposium promotes excellence in student learning, experiences, and outcomes. The assembly focuses on students' experiential learning and challenges on the opportunities that face land-grant universities and on the "next new idea" and initiatives to strengthen the 1890 research and education enterprise. Thus, the ARD Research Symposium cultivates students' potential to assume roles as both scientists and leaders of an evolving knowledge-based, global economy. Ben Franklin said it best: "Tell me and I forget. Teach me and I remember. Involve me and I learn."

The ARD Biennial Research Symposium will also provide opportunities for scientists to present research papers and posters that share innovative and practical research findings in the food and agricultural sciences. The Symposium is expected to attract nearly 1000 participants, and more than 650 research papers and posters will be presented.

The topics for 2017 Symposium are:

- Family, Youth, Community and Economic Development
- Food Safety, Nutrition and Health
- Renewable Energy, Natural Resources, and Environment
- Plant Health and Production and Plant Products
- Animal Health and Production and Animal Products
